UNDERGRADUATE HUMANITIES RESEARCH FELLOWSHIPS

The Wolf Humanities Center offers fellowships each year to Penn undergraduate students from any school who are interested in conducting extracurricular research in the humanities on some aspect of the Center's annual theme.

Fellows become members of the Wolf Undergraduate Humanities Forum, a community of undergrads who meet to discuss and present their research, pursue various cultural activities of common interest, and occasionally meet in special receptions with the Wolf Humanities Center's distinguished speakers. The year's program culminates in a spring conference at which students give formal presentations on the results of their research.

Fellows are required to attend and participate in meetings, which during the 2022–23 academic year will be every other Friday from 2:00–4:00pm, as well as the Undergraduate Humanities Forum Research Conference scheduled for Friday, March 24, 2023. Additional opportunities and outings for fellows will be announced during the year. Students must be full time, on campus for the full academic year of the award, and in good academic standing.

WOLF HUMANITIES CENTER'S 2022–2023 FORUM ON HERITAGE

During a time when endangered ethnic heritage is actively being recovered – and when fraught histories of past attacks are increasingly being revealed – the Wolf Humanities Center topic for 2022–2023 calls for artistic, scholarly, theatrical, literary, and other responses, as we seek to critically investigate, recover, and celebrate distinctive forms of material and ephemeral heritage.
